Dr. Anton Vrame, a lifetime committed leader of the Greek Orthodox Church will present his views of the core beliefs, practices, and characteristics that identify an individual or community as "Greek Orthodox."

Then in interaction with the moderator, Dr. Douglas Foster of the ACU Graduate School of Theology, and the full audience, we will explore implications of Dr. Vrame's presentation for other religious communities, including Churches of Christ. This event is sponsored by the Center for Heritage and Renewal in Spirituality (CHARIS) at ACU and is open to the public.

A reception will follow the discussion.

The views presented during this event are those of the respective scholars and are not intended to represent a position taken by ACU.
