To whom it may concern:

It is my pleasure to recommend Dr. John Homer for promotion to full professor in the School of Information Technology and Computing at Abilene Christian University.

In the five years that I have known John, I have seen tremendous professional growth. He has embraced leadership opportunities in whatever form they have taken from acting as program lead for computer science to his current role as the Director of SITC. John is consistently sought out by his peers for advice and input on a variety of issues.

John is esteemed by our students as a strong teacher, mentor, and man of faith. His dedication to excellent teaching is evident in each course taught. He challenges our students to perform at a high level, allowing them to understand and realize their potential. As a mentor, he is often engaged in conversation with students about their future plans. Finally, students often point to John as an example of a strong Christian professional, husband, and father. His dedication to faith is evident in his personal life, interactions with colleagues, and leadership of our weekly small group chapel.

John Homer's dedication to excellent teaching and continued research is apparent in the work that he does in SITC. Additionally, he challenges our students, faculty, and staff to a high standard through his example. This excellence and dedication allows us to offer exceptional academic quality to our students. I am confident that he will continue to be a distinguished leader both in and out of the classroom, equipping our students to attain their degree and enter the marketplace as competent professionals.

Sincerely,

Jenni Williams
