- She's amazing.
- Alrighr, but would show no bias without backing or explanation
- She is a great professor who genuinely cares about her students. She has a passion for this material and it translates into how she teaches. Overall, she is a great person and professor.
- Dr. Gibson was an excellent professor. She allowed for group discussion everyday in order to provoke thought and stimulate new ideas. The content of this course was excellent. Reading responses allowed us to have an idea of what class discussions would be that day.
- I appreciated her taking the time to work with me when I was struggling with course work. She was very understanding I and enjoyed having discussions in her class.
- She is an Amazing professor who loves her job and is here Always.
- It's a fun class if you are comfortably enough to talk out loud and communicate with the whole class.
- I enjoyed having Dr. Gibson teach this class. She is an excellent professor. We had many intellectual conversations in the class and I was satisfied with the course.
- I was dreading this class more than any of the courses on my degree plan, because I has never heard a positive comment on BCOR. Kelli Gibson was an incredible professor, and chose her course focuses and readings in a way that I gained an enormous amount from taking this course. The 3-2-1 reflections were tedious, but helped me to have a deeper understanding of a reading that I otherwise would just skim. I feel like what I learned from this course has grown me in my spiritual life, as well as in my knowledge about other religions. It also corrected some incorrect assumptions that I held about those religions.
- This course was not beneficial to me or to my education here. I feel that this was an unnecessary course to require for graduation. The professor was seldom ever able to answer questions and rarely had anything prepared for class. She had us split into groups so that we could go over the material ourselves rather than have her teach about it herself. We had reading responses due by every class meeting, however we seldom if ever discussed the reading or how it related to the class. I feel like I learned nothing from this course and will not be able to take anything away from it. She preached that we needed to value others opinions but she seemed to not listen to the opinions of others and impose her own opinions and beliefs on the class.
- This class was not beneficial to me or my education. I feel like I learned absolutely nothing from this class. It really was not helpful that every time someone had a question in class, the teacher could not even give us an answer to the question. I feel that we should have spent less time discussing our questions and ideas in our groups. I would have appreciated more structured lectures from the teacher in order to actually learn something from this course. The 3-2-1 reading responses were a tad excessive. Also, not every time that you read something will you have a question about that reading. With that being said, towards the end we rarely even talked about the responses and how they related to the course. In addition, I do not understand why three books were even required for this course because the last two books we barely covered in class. Plus, I felt the readings were very biased. Lastly, this teacher told us to be open minded to other people's opinions, yet she was not open minded at all. I felt like she tried to push her opinions on us too much.
- Dr. Gibson was an excellent professor who has challenged many points of views and perspective for myself and other students. My only critique is that she expressed her political opinion too much within some of the course content. It was obvious what her political views were and I think it affected how she taught some of the material. Other than that, she was an amazing professor who I would recommend to future students.

What specific actions and attitudes did you notice from your instructor that demonstrated his/her Christ-like character and conduct? -*A

- She was patient
- Dr. Gibson was significantly open-minded and willing to listen to her students. She was polite and welcoming to ideas that I thought expressed genuine love and concern for her students.
- Her attitude toward her students and being willing to help out people when they needed it.
- Dr. Gibson was very respectful to everyone's particular backgrounds and beliefs.
- She is open to all religions and is not judgmental. She is kind and considerate of all and takes every student's opinion into consideration.
- Her attitude and actions reflected Christ
