Dear Dr. Burton,

Hope you're doing well!

I've been meaning to write to you ever since I got back from the conference on 13th, but I work full-time at my university to cover my tuition and it has been extremely busy as we're registering new students for Fall 2018.

I just wanted to tell you how much I loved being a part of such an incredible group of individuals. The consortium began with your speech which was perhaps one of the most moving speeches I've heard in the recent past. As you spoke about Spirituality and Qualitative Research Methods, I felt so relieved that there are more people who are far more qualified and experienced than I am, who feel the same way and I can look up to them with such inspiration in my heart. And that's when I decided that I'd want more and more students to experience what I did at the conference. My intended dissertation is a big part of my very being and it comes naturally to me to approach it with all seriousness and dedication.

Each session was so enlightening and each conversation, absolutely delightful. I felt a deep sense of gratitude to be among such wonderful individuals. I had to leave a little earlier than the conference officially ended since I had certain commitments at work here, but was looking for you before I left to express my heartfelt gratitude to you for not only giving me the opportunity to be a part of something so beautiful where everyone comes together to think of one another and the world as a collective being as opposed to scattered figments of their imagination, but at the same time making me feel so encouraged, motivated, supported and involved. I'm sure it took a lot of effort for you to organize everything and put it all together so efficiently, smoothly and gracefully. I'd love to be able to help out next time, if you think that is something you'd like me to do! 😊

I will be actively working with Elizabeth and other Doctoral students and also with Ginger Grant for different communications and marketing strategies for MSR.

Thank you again for everything.

Warm Regards
Ayesha

Ayesha,

You are very kind and more than gracious in your response. I am pleased that your experience with the Academy and MSR was enjoyable and most beneficial. This is the result of God's Spirit at work for your good.

I pray for your work as you complete your program and continue to conduct meaningful research for the common good. Please stay in touch and let me know if I can help in the future.

Blessings!
