Course Number: N/A or Degree Plan(s): Master of Science in Precision Medicine Degree Plan

The Master of Science in Precision Medicine would like to add a Program Outcome to the original Program Outcomes presented at the June 21, 2021 Academic Council Meeting. This new Program Outcome #3 will memorialize the importance of ethical and professional standards within the discipline of Precision Medicine required to meet the needs of the patient and the community. As such, we recommend the below Program Outcome addition.

Revised Precision Medicine Program Outcomes

Program outcomes.

1. Students will learn the theory and practice supporting techniques and skills necessary in a clinical precision medicine laboratory performing molecular tests and evaluating analytical test results.
2. Students will learn to critically evaluate the research literature, identify an important problem in precision medicine, and plan/conduct research to address research problems.
3. Students will apply ethical and professional standards including responsibility to the patient and community both personally and professionally within the organization.
4. Students will learn the essentials leading to the practice of the highest levels of laboratory safety, professional conduct, and ethical principles.
